CHARRED OAK CASK

Rising endlessly from its ashes to live again, the phoenix inspires our smooth and spicy single malt, Glen Moray Phoenix Rising.

In honour of that mythical bird – which mysteriously burns before being born anew – we finish our smooth, balanced whisky in new charred oak casks.

Charred by fire like the phoenix itself, these casks transform our spirit with the wood's full power. Their distinctive notes of creamy caramel, milk chocolate, ginger and pepper, bring an enticing new spectrum of flavours to life.

CASK EXPLORER

Since the first spirit flowed from our stills in Elgin, Speyside, on 13th September 1897, Glen Moray has been distilling the finest single malts and exploring how wood can influence whisky's taste. Our founders matured the earliest Glen Moray in an astonishing array of casks. Their experimental ways inspire our craft even now. Uniting passion for flavour with generations of skill, we honour their legacy in each drop of our whisky today.

TASTING NOTES

NOSE

Scents of coconut, creamy caramel and milk chocolate are laced with hints of pepper.

TASTE

Caramel gives way to gentle tones of wood spice, vanilla and sweet ginger.

FINISH

A peppery note emerges, then fades into notes of light oak, nuts and malt.
